Trans Inclusion Resource List for Professionals

Issue 18
June 2022

Note:

Inclusion on this list does not imply an endorsement of content or services.

Other Resources: Organisations

The following is a selection of the more established national trans organisations which can act as 'gateway' organisations to link into a wider network of trans related groups and services. In addition, there are many local support organisations across the UK.

A more comprehensive list of both national and local organisations, including peer support, can be found via these links:

- GIRES 'TransWiki' clickable map at www.tranzwiki.net/
- TransUnite searchable listing of trans support groups at <https://www.transunite.co.uk/>

Gendered Intelligence

Gendered Intelligence (GI) is a registered charity that works to increase understandings of gender diversity and improve the lives of trans people.

There are multiple strands to our work:

- Youth & Community Services
- Professional Services
- Work in Education - a package that combines elements of both of the above
- Public Engagement

Professional Services refers primarily to the work we deliver to organisations or professional individuals who want to be more trans inclusive both in terms of their services and their workplaces. This includes training, consultancy, events such as panel discussions and Q&As, workshops, lectures and assemblies for young people in education, and our network for therapists and counsellors.

Youth & Community Services covers our direct provision for trans people especially young trans and gender questioning people. This includes youth work – regular groups, residentials, trips and activities, 1:1 support and mentoring for young trans people in educational environments; our parents and carers group; a helpline commissioned by several GICs for those on their waiting lists; one-off special projects, and our volunteering programmes

Public Engagement covers our work in the policy and media spheres, responding to consultations, to requests for interviews and expert opinion; media engagement; engaging our supporters, the general public, and others who may be interested in our work; and research.

The following is a selection of online trans-related resources. It is by no means comprehensive, but will provide you with initial information on the current approach in a number of settings. However, please note the documents are not all statements of best practice as that’s still developing in many areas. If you think something can be done better, then strive to make that happen, and showcase the good practice for others to learn from.

Intersex People

Although Gendered Intelligence is not an organisation of and for intersex people, it can be useful to understand the experiences of intersex people alongside those of trans people, how trans and intersex people differ, and some of the issues there may be in common between the two groups.

Glossaries of Terms

Here is a selection of glossaries – there are many more online. These have been selected as being either relatively new, or containing some measure of update commitment, and containing few or no descriptions that Gendered Intelligence would regard as wholly inaccurate. However, even comparing these, you'll notice differences of understanding even between some of the more common terms.

Gender: A Few Definitions – Brook

There is a range of reports available online. Here is a selection, divided thematically to help you find what you need. We have cross-referred in the main instances, but do check all potentially relevant headings.

Prevalence Statistics

Approx 1:100 people fall somewhere under the broader trans umbrella:

UK National LGBT Survey - Research Report, 2018

First national LGBT survey – 108,000 respondents incl. 13% trans people - summary and full reports
<https://www.gov.uk/government/publications/national-lgbt-survey-summary-report>

The 2018 government LGBT survey report by the Government Equalities Office says (p14) (our bold):
“There is currently no robust measure of the size of the trans population in the UK. Applying estimates of population prevalence from studies in other countries suggests that between 0.35% and 1% of the UK population might be trans, although this does not include non-binary people. ...”

Given that the report also says (p16):

“Of all respondents, 49% were men (including 3% trans men), 42% were women (including 3% trans women), and 7% were non-binary. The remaining respondents either had an ‘other’ gender identity (1%) or said that they did not know or preferred not to say (1%)”, this indicates that non-binary may, in fact, be a majority identity amongst trans people and applying that to the 0.35% - 1% statistics gives a range inclusive of non-binary people, of at least 0.7% - 2%

1% is the statistic that is commonly used across Europe.

The following meta-analysis identifies a range with 1% at its centre, and acknowledges both that clinical studies capture only a proportion of the trans* population and the trend towards more people identifying as trans*:

Size and Distribution of Transgender and Gender Nonconforming Populations: A Narrative Review (2019), Goodman, Adams, Corneil Kreukels, Motmans & Coleman

“The literature addressing this topic spans five decades and presents data from 17 countries. On balance, the data indicate that people who self-identify as TGNC represent a sizable proportion of the general population with realistic estimates ranging from 0.1% to 2%, depending on the inclusion criteria and geographic location. Clinic-based studies seem to capture only a small subset of the TGNC population. Temporal trends show that TGNC population is undergoing rapid changes in terms of its size and in terms of its demographic characteristics.”

Recent studies indicate that increasing numbers of young people in particular identify outside the gender binary, so 1% is likely to be conservative:

The May 2021 US report Prevalence of Gender-Diverse Youth in an Urban School District (American Academy of Paediatrics) indicates that 9.2% of teens don't identify with the binary, as reported here:
www.them.us/story/high-schooler-gender-diversity-study

The 2022 US Pew Research Center survey found that 1.6% of U.S. adults are transgender or nonbinary, and over 5% of young adults in the U.S. say their gender is different from their sex assigned at birth:
